Good example of Robert Blachford's sea chart of the northern part of Scotland, with inset map of the Orkney Islands.

The chart is a composite of various surveys of the North Coast of Scotland, including the Orkney and Shetland Islands, conducted by notable surveyors such as Mackenzie, Downie, and Hepburn.

Robert Blachford was a chartmaker and publisher active in the early 19th century. He was known for compiling and publishing sea charts based on the work of various surveyors, creating composite charts that were considered accurate and up-to-date. Blachford's work was highly regarded by sailors and navigators, who relied on his charts for safe navigation in the waters of the North Coast of Scotland.
