Wilhelm Putz was a distinguished 19th-century German scholar and cartographer who notably served as the principal tutor at the Gymnasium of Duren. Beyond his pivotal educational role, Putz was recognized for his significant contributions to historical cartography and pedagogy. His "Historisch-Geographischer Schul-Atlas. Erste Abtheilung: Die Alte Welt", published in Regensburg in the 1860s and 1870s, is a testament to his meticulous scholarship, offering a comprehensive view of the terrains, borders, and dynamics of the ancient world. Additionally, Putz authored a Handbook of Medieval Geography and History in German, further showcasing his depth of knowledge in blending geographical study with
