Description:

Road Map of a Portion of South Sudan -- Construction of the Juba, Future Capital of South Sudan

Interesting map of the area between Juba and the area around Nimule and the Asswa River, illustrating the roads in the region, at a time when the leadership of Anglo-Egyptian Sudan was creating the town of Juba, future capital of South Sudan.

The map was almost certainly created in about 1929-1930, during a period of time when Anglo-Egyptian Sudan was creating the town of Juba in the late 1920s, at the site of the Nugent Memorial Intermediate School, opened by the Church Missionary Society in 1921. Major construction of the new city of Juba was underway by 1927. Traders from Rejaf relocated to Juba in 1929, and the Governor's office of Mongalla was moved to Juba in 1930.

Constructed on an earlier map of the rivers in the area originally prepared by F.T. Murray, the map
