Description:

This fine example of Herman Moll's 1732 miniature engraved map presents North Africa in two separate images on the same sheet, taken from his Atlas minor. Hand-colored by kingdom, the maps offer a vivid and detailed depiction of the region during the early 18th century.

The top map, titled "The West Part of Barbary Containing Fez, Marocco, Algiers, and Tunis," provides a comprehensive view of the western part of North Africa, showcasing its major cities and geographical features. An inset of the harbor of Oran is included, adding further detail to the map.

The bottom map, titled "The East Part of Barbary containing Tripoli, Barca and the North Part of Egypt," focuses on the eastern portion of the region, encompassing present-day Libya and the northern part of Egypt. This map offers an equally detailed representation of the area, highlighting its key locations and topography.

Detailed Condition:

Original hand-color in outline. Minor dampstain at the bottom edge.
