Description:

The Official Map of San Francisco Cal., created by George F. Cram in Chicago in 1892, is a remarkable and detailed cartographic treatment of the City by the Bay.

The map provides a comprehensive view of the city, highlighting various features such as wharves, dry docks, forts, streets, parks, rail lines, rivers, buildings, and wards. This level of detail offers valuable insights into the urban layout and infrastructure of San Francisco during the late 19th century.

In addition to its informational content, the map's aesthetic appeal is enhanced by the inclusion of an attractive compass rose, adding an artistic element to the overall design.
